

Hong Kong crocodile caught at last.

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20040625-00

June 25, 2004

Raymond Chen

After over half a year of eluding experts, the Hong Kong crocodile was caught at last. What amused me was that the article said that the creature had eluded an expert crocodile hunter from Australia named... John Lever? (Curiously, in this article, he is given credit for capturing the croc.)

Not the self-proclaimed Crocodile Hunter Steve Irwin? Where's his PR department when he needs them?

Raymond Chen

Follow

