

Why was nine the maximum number of monitors in Windows 98?

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20040721-00

July 21, 2004

Raymond Chen

Windows 98 was the first version of Windows to support multiple monitors. And the limit was nine. Why nine? Because that allowed you to arrange your monitors like this. You have early seventies television to thank.

[Raymond is currently on vacation; this message was pre-recorded.]

Raymond Chen

Follow

