The publicity machine continues: A chat with Scott Hanselman and Hanselminutes

devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20070326-01

March 26, 2007

Raymond Chen

Scott Hanselman let me know he was going to be in town, and after some negotiation with the company PR department (who probably get the massive heebie-jeebies from this whole blog thing), I was able to accept his invitation to appear on his weekly podcast, HanselMinutes. We sat down for a little chat, and a few weeks later, I became Show #56. I haven't had the nerve to listen to it myself. I hope I came off okay.

In other self-promotion news (did I mention yet that I wrote a book?), it looks like I will be in Palo Alto on April 21 for a family event, and I'll likely spend the 20th visiting Microsoft's Silicon Valley Campus. If you'd like me to pay a visit to your user group or whatever, let me know.

Raymond Chen

Follow