

Sounds about right: What a geek does with an iPhone in the first two days

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20071123-01

November 23, 2007

Raymond Chen

Welcome to Black Friday, the traditional start of the Christmas shopping season. I suspect there will be a bunch of people who are hoping Santa will get them an iPhone. Here's one story of what lies in store.

One of my friends stood in line on the first day of iPhone availability and got one of the highly-anticipated gadgets. We happened to get together two days later, and of course there was a lot of showing off and playing with the phone's features. But for me what was telling was the part of the phone which shows you the phone usage statistics. After two days, the numbers looked something like this:

- Data downloaded from the Internet: 500MB
- Minutes talking on the phone: 2

Sounds about right.

Raymond Chen

Follow

