

Just letting you know I had to reboot my telephone devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20090519-00

May 19, 2009

Raymond Chen

Shortly after my group got switched over to new fancy-dancy IP phones, one of my colleagues sent me email to say “This morning, when I picked up the phone, I kept getting a ‘URL not allowed’ error. I fixed it by rebooting my phone.”

So this is what the world has come to.

Bonus chatter: As many readers surmised, these “new” IP phones arrived over a year ago. On the other hand, I never did get to learn all the features of the device before it was replaced with a different model of IP phone. Progress.

Raymond Chen

Follow

