

Grown in the middle of some very respectable Seattle suburbs, such as Renton

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20090903-01

September 3, 2009

Raymond Chen

“The marijuana is grown in the middle of some very respectable Seattle suburbs, such as Renton.” This is a funny sentence if you’re a longtime resident of the greater Seattle area, because Renton has historically been a working-class town. (Here’s Almost Live’s parody of South King County to give you an idea of what Renton is up against.)

The city is working to change its reputation. I wish them luck.

Raymond Chen

Follow

