On the Internet, everybody wants to know if you're a dog

February 22, 2010

Raymond Chen

On Slate, Michael Agger expounds on increasing pressure for people to provide pictures of themselves online. I've managed to resist so far.

That article also tipped me off to a phenomenon I didn't even know had a name: MySpace angles.

Raymond Chen

Follow