

German language tip: Matratzen = mattresses, Matrosen = sailors devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20100224-01

February 24, 2010

Raymond Chen

Be careful not to confuse the two.

Since we're sharing: During a conversation in German, I talked about seeing Unfall (accident) instead of Abfall (garbage) on the street. To my credit, I immediately corrected my error. To my discredit, the error was made at the state finals of a German language contest.

Raymond Chen

Follow

